59 Bills Are Signed Into Law by WR

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov.
Winthrop Rockefeller signed 59 bills into law Monday, including one to provide the state's school teachers a salary increase of not less than $500 annually in the next two years.

Rockefeller also let a bill to create an Arkansas Dairy Commission become law without his signature.

Among other bills signed into law were one directing the transfer of all patients from McRae Sanatorium to the state Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Booneville by July 1 and one raising the salaries of municipal judges in a number of Arkansas cities.

School Loans $7.3 Million Are Approved

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Board of Education Monday approved about $7.3 million in short-term bus and school loans and commercial bond issues for local school districts.

Mrs. Thelma Spinnenweber, supervisor of loans for the Education Department, said most of the new money would finance construction.

The board took no action on a suggestion from Perrin Jones of Searcy that it consider consolidating local school district bond issues and putting the bloc up for sale. Jones said the interest rates would be lower and the bonds would be more attractive to buyers. He cited the system now used in Georgia.

Betty Furness Appointment Disapproved

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's appointment of former refrigerator saleswoman Betty Furness as his consumer affairs adviser has drawn a freezer-like chill from consumer groups and congressmen active in consumer affairs.

Most either have declined direct comment or expressed the hope that once Miss Furness assumes her duties and learns more about consumer problems she will become an effective pro-consumer voice.

Miss Furness, known best for opening refrigerator doors on television commercials, was named to the $26,000-a-year job
March 4.

She succeeds Mrs. Esther Petersen, who retains her other job as assistant secretary of labor.

"We were a little surprised that the President picked somebody with no experience in this area," said Sarah Newman, executive director of the National Consumers League. "My hope is that she will be able to pick up where Mrs. Petersen left off."

Her familiarity to housewives was seen by some observers as an asset, however — and perhaps of political help for Johnson.

"I am disappointed in the appointment of a television personality," began a letter to the President from Dean Helen G.
Canoyer of Cornell University's College of Home Economics. She formerly was head of the National Consumer Advisory

Dodd Admits Receiving $150,000

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate ethics committee probe of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd turns today to exploring the motives behind fund-raising activities the Connecticut Democrat says put at least $150,000 into his personal bank accounts.

The hearings got off to a fast start Monday with the bi-partisan committee and Dodd stipu-lating in a 162-page document to a mass of facts concerning fundraising activities in his behalf between 1961 and 1965.

In addition to campaign contributions for Dodd's 1964 re-election race, there were a series of testimonial events. Dodd contends the proceeds from these were tax-free gifts he could legitimately use as he saw fit.

Figures in the stipulation indicated that $456,709 was raised altogether and that Dodd deposited at least $150,000 of it in his own bank accounts.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., told reporters that "due to the sweeping nature of the stipulation," the hearings were moving rather rapidly and might be completed before Congress starts an Easter recess late next week.

With so many facts agreed to, Stennis said testimony will deal largely with explanations and the motives that prompted the testimonial dinners and other fund-raising events.

President Johnson, when he was vice president, was the principal speaker at testimonial affairs in 1961 and 1963. Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey was the featured speaker at a fund-raising dinner in 1965.

Among the witnesses on tap today was Ivan Sinclair, an aide to then-Vice President Johnson in 1961. Sinclair, the committee was told Monday, inquired about the purpose of the Nov.
20, 1961, testimonial at which Johnson spoke.

James P. Boyd Jr., Dodd's former administrative assistant, said when the senator learned about the inquiry he said "to tell the vice president the purpose was to raise money."

When Dodd was asked whether he would benefit personally, Boyd said, the senator gave these instructions: "Tell them I may be presented with a gold watch."

Dodd says he fired Boyd for misconduct and that his onetime aide, seeking revenge, turned over to columnists Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson documents stolen from his Senate office.

Dodd has filed a $2 million libel suit against Pearson and Anderson, whose columns led to the Senate panel's probe.

Claims Scheme for a 'Free Drinks' Club

By KELLY SMITH

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep.
H. R. Gross claims the administration is scheming to make taxpayers subsidize a "plush international drinking club for the diplomatic jet set, go-go and body stocking types."

"For years," the Iowa Republican said, "the State Department has been coming to Congress asking for funds to provide free drinks for foreign nationals in our American embassies abroad."

"Now this line of thinking has come full circle," he said. "The President is asking Congress to provide a club for the international drinking set in Washington."

Gross prepared such remarks
Monday for the Congressional Record and elaborated in an interview.

He referred to a plan to condemn 42 acres near the State Department to develop an international embassy complex including lots for foreign missions, office buildings and international organizations. At the core of the complex would be a club to be used for diplomatic functions. Cost of land acquisition has been estimated at $40 million.

Republicans and Democrats generally agree the government should purchase land, which in turn would be leased tax-free to foreign governments. But there is disagreement on the method.

The administration - backed plan has not been introduced
yet. Rep. Ancher Nelsen, R-Minn., has sponsored a Republican plan which calls for purchase of two smaller land areas in the city but omits the core idea.

The State Department says
Nelsen's plan is short-sighted and doesn't offer enough expansion possibilities. "As for Congressman Gross' complaints about the club," a spokesman said, "it's too early to contemplate. We don't know who would run it or how. We're talking about a kind of international precinct not to be completed until 1985."

Gross insisted it is never too early to talk about tax money.
"A plush international club will undoubtedly attract most of the Great Society's hard-drinking set as well as the State Department's international drinking crowd and the international jet-set," Gross said.

"We doubt any of the go-go types will insist on dairy milk produced by plain old cows.

"We can look forward to credit cards for the international club with a direct pipeline to the U.S. Treasury Department. In addition, we can expect international club bunnies and all of the other joyous things of the Key Club sets."

Gross, who labels himself a
"temperate drinker" predicted:
"If the Congress approves this White House, State Department international center plan, it will set international relations back 100 years."

town, Ky., has been in con-

Pastor's Wife Favorable to Miniskirt

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — "I think that I can help many young people find God," said the miniskirted young wife of a British Methodist minister.

"I think miniskirts are super," Marjorie Janney continued. "They express the freedom of our age. One can move about in a miniskirt."

"By being modern I feel I can encourage young people to realize that religion does not mean disapproval."

Newspaper pictures of the Rev. Denis Janney's shapely 28-year-old wife in a skirt that ended six inches above her knees brought her a bunch of anonymous critical letters.

"We burned the letters," said Mrs. Janney.

"It's not their business what sort of skirt my wife wears," said her husband, whose parish is in southeast London. "It's this sort of intolerance which keeps many people from going to church. I'm proud of my wife and proud to have her a member of my church."

Mrs. Janney, a red-haired model and the mother of a 7-year-old daughter, says since she started wearing short skirts she has done two television commercials and has been offered two parts in the movies.

The band of the King's Hussars also named her their plump. Mrs. Janney takes an active part in church life. She gives hours each week to a church youth club, speaks regularly to women's organizations and

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The prospect of "a full hour tribute," as NBC called it, to a musical conductor would, under most circumstances, bring a switching of channels to avoid long speeches.

However, Arturo Toscanini was a fascinating, vital man of music during his lifetime. And Sunday night's Telephone Hour was an interesting hour — full of fine music, some great old film of the maestro conducting and even a bit of humor.

Toscanini, who died 10 years ago at the age of 90, started out as a boy prodigy in Italy, and after conducting at La Scala and for the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, became — at the age of 70 — conductor of the NBC symphony orchestra.

Through Toscanini's great years, there were stories about his temper tantrums at rehearsals, and anecdotes were told about these.

Conductors Eugene Ormandy, George Szell and Erich Leinsdorf explained the quality of his musical genius — clarity, balance, conviction were only a few of the words used — and all agreed that he changed the course of 20th century music.

NBC had another moving program earlier in the day with "The Vine," which was an illustrated story of the life of Christ.

The narration, in language drawn largely from several different versions of the New Testament, was simple and a fine accompaniment to the beautiful photography made in Jordan and Israel.

The message, of course, was one of brotherhood and love.

If home in 2001 is going to be anything like that projected by Walter Cronkite and "The 21st Century" on CBS Sunday, a number of people would not be sorry to stop the world and get off.

We were introduced to inflatable, portable armchairs, radio-wave cooking, prefabricated blocks, piled one upon the other to make vertical cities of the future, computers in living rooms — and television screens bringing in everything from instant weather maps to the image of the person you are talking to on the telephone.

gives fashion and beauty hints to young wives.

She and her husband said the critical letters came from outsiders, not from his parishioners.

"So far as we know," said the minister, "no one in the congregation objects to my wife's skirt. The fact is — our attendance is growing."

NOTHING COLDER THAN A BURNED OUT SPARKLER

Dear Helen: I went steady with this guy for four months. I can sum up those months in these words: It was like standing one summer night and looking into the sky and seeing it all lit up with sparklers and fire-works. And then all of a sudden they fizzled out and I was left looking up into the lonely dark.

Now he won't even say "Hi". He's got a new girl and she's a doll. I'm glad for both of them, but I want at least to be friends. Why must a boy and girl be enemies when they part? —TO BE A FRIEND

Dear TBF: . . . Probably because his new girlfriend wants it that way. So long as you still carry a torch, she fears it may re-light those fireworks.

Let him know with off-hand friendliness there's nothing cooler than a burned - out sparkler — and prove it by dating other boys.

I see no reason why ex-steadies shouldn't be "Hi" on one another's lists. Snubs seem pretty juvenile. —H

Dear Helen: I am a compulsive cheater. I've tried many times to quit but I can't. I go into class and say to myself, "I'm not going to look on anyone else's paper," but about half way through the test I get shaky and unsure. Then I fall back into my old habit. I have never been caught. Sometimes I wish I would. —HUU READER

Dear Reader: You can't cure this habit until you change your attitude. Somewhere along the line, you've been made to feel grades are your goal — not learning.

You cheat because you're afraid: Of letting down your parents? Of not making college? Of being inferior? I don't know, but of one thing I'm sure: you need counselling. Take your problem to an understanding teacher or wise adult friend, and I'm sure you'll uncover the real reason for your compulsion. —H

Dear Helen: I'm 16 and mature for my age. While at a luncheon engagement with my father, I met his boss, a man of 40 who is just fantastic. We talked of everything and had a great time. Well, my Dad got pretty loaded, so this man put on some music and we danced. Then he kissed me. It wasn't a fatherly kiss!

My father is no longer employed by this man but we still see each other and have such fun. He treats me with respect and told me he'd like to marry me sometime in the future.

Does he really love me, or what does he want? —DEEPLY INVOLVED

Dear D. H. I could guess what he wants isn't marriage, but I'd only be guessing. Why not ask your father? And keep in mind this fascinating man is nearly three times your age—he'll be 60 when you're a young 36.—H.

TEEN BOOST OF THE MONTH CLUB

Dear Helen: I'd like to nominate the young people in our town for your Teen Boost of the Month. Words are empty shells when it comes to thanking them. My husband died recently. They helped me in every way they could: ran errands, worked around the house and yard, cheered me when I needed cheering badly, but never "crowded in." They were just "there" when I needed them.

They all clipped in and provided a beautiful floral wreath at the funeral, signed "Your teenage friends."

No one dare say nothing to me about modern young people unless it's good. They don't make them any better than ours! —RECENT WIDOW

Dear Helen: Would you please re-print "What is a Service Man" and "What is an Airman", as I want to send copies to my friends? —ANNE

Dear Anne: I have a better idea: inasmuch as so many have asked, I'll send free mimeographed copies to anyone who will send me a stamped self-addressed envelope, care of this newspaper. —H

In the Name of Charity

To help a worthy cause, you buy a $5 ticket to a theater party. May you deduct the $5 on your next income tax return as a charitable contribution?

No, because your payment was not all charity. You received something of value in return: the show itself. If the regular price of tickets is $3, you may deduct only the other $2—the part that was truly a gift.

This rule has wide application, not only in such frivolous areas as theater parties, charity balls, lotteries, and athletic events but also in such basic areas as health and education.

For example: A man claimed a deduction for money paid to a non-profit retirement home—in return for lifetime care.

A woman claimed a deduction for money paid to a religious society—in return for perpetual upkeep of her burial plot.

But in each case, the deduction was not allowed. For in each case, the payment was held not true charity but simply a purchase of services—like any other family expense.

The mere fact that your payment is in the form of a check made out to a charitable organization does not change it into charity if it really isn't.

And, by the same token, a true gift may be deductible even if it is not in the form of money at all. Thus, contributions of food, or books to a qualified charitable organization are deductible.

What about services that you render? No doubt, in the scales of virtue, donating your services weighs as much as donating your money or your merchandise.

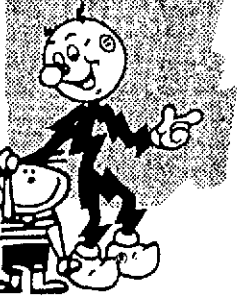

Nonetheless, services are held not a deductible contribution, perhaps because of the formidable problems of fixing their value. Imagine the difficulties of putting a price tag on the services of a Mom to a Girl Scout troop or of a Dad to the Community Chest.

On the other hand, if your services require out-of-pocket expenses for which you are not reimbursed, they are generally deductible.

For instance, the costs of driving to a volunteer job at a hospital, or of buying uniforms not otherwise useful, may be deducted. For, in a true sense, you are "giving" this amount to charity.

Illinois to Decide on Action

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Dr. David D. Henry and the University of Illinois Board of Trustees huddle today to decide what action will be taken in a final Big Ten appeal concerning the $21,000 slush fund scandal.

Dr. Henry, president of the university, is expected to get approval from the board in an attempt to "show cause" why three coaches involved in the scandal should not be fired.

Big Ten athletic directors and faculty representatives have ruled the university must show cause why its membership should not be suspended or terminated if the three coaches are not fired.

The three are football Coach Pete Elliott, basketball Coach Harry Combes and Combes' assistant, Howard Braun. Dr. Henry has held the Big Ten's demands are "too harsh."

Illinois has until Friday to serve notice that it seeks an appeal, and a date, mutually convenient for both groups, will be set for a meeting, probably next week.

If the faculty representatives still demand that Illinois fire the coaches or get out of the Big Ten, Dr. Henry and the trustees again will meet to make their final decision.

In addition to demanding the dismissal of the coaches, the faculty men recently ruled five Illinois athletes permanently ineligible and three temporarily ineligible.

Several other athletes either left school or were cleared of charges involving illegal aid ranging from $15 to $50 a month.

Meanwhile, former athletic director Doug Mills, who resigned Dec. 1, a couple of weeks before the scandal broke, denied he had made statements that Dr. Henry had knowledge of the slush fund.

Mills said his remarks to a Chicago columnist Sunday were misinterpreted. Mills was quoted as saying Dr. Henry "knew as much about the fund as I did."

Dr. Henry branded the statements attributed to Mills "a total untruth."

PREVIEW

Baltimore Orioles By SANDY PADWE Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PITCHING—Nebody is making cracks about the Orioles pitching any more. Not after last October. Maybe it was luck. Maybe the Orioles did get four well-pitched games in a row. But the 1966 World Series has to boost the confidence of youngsters like Dave McNally (13-6), Jim Palmer (15-10), Wally Bunker (10-6). If Steve Barber's arm is sound again, Orioles will be much stronger. Steve was 10-5 last year. Series hero Moe Drabowsky (6-0) will pitch more this season. Ed Barrowski, Frank Bertina may be ready, finally. Bullpen loses Dick Hall, but retains Stu Miller (9-4, 2.25), Eddie Fisher (5-3, 2.64), Eddie Watt (7-7), Gene Brabender (4-3) complete relief corps. RATING—B+.

INFIELD—Scouting reports predict superstardom for powerful Mike Epstein (29 HR, 102 RBI at Rochester). He'll have to push Boog Powell (287, 34 HR, 109 RBI) off first. Not many people push 6-3, 240-pound Powell around. The battle should make spring training quite lively. Orioles' baseball bills will be up. That's certain. Rest of infield status quo. Dave Johnson (257) at second, Luis Aparicio (276) at short, Brooks Robinson (269, 23 HR, 100 RBI) at third. None better. RATING—A.

OUTFIELD—Frank Robinson won triple crown last season (316, 49 HR, 122 RBI). Repeat would be asking quite a bit. Nevertheless, Frank doesn't think it's impossible. Paul Blair (277) set in center field. Speedy, good fielder. Curt Blefary (255, 23 HR, 64 RBI), Russ Snyder (306) the other outfielders. RATING—A.

CATCHING—Andy Etchebarren had fine rookie year despite 221 average. Was exceptional handling pitcher. Charley Lau, out with a bad elbow most of last year, has the good bat. Not as strong defensively. Vic Rozovsky, Larry Honey will battle for third spot. RATING—B.

BENCH—Basically same as last season. Add Epstein. Bob Johnson, spare in fielder, reliable pinchhitter. Sam Bovens has power. Woody Held can play in field. Outfield Mark Belanger could stick as infield utilityman. RATING—B.

SUMMARY—If Barber makes full comeback, Orioles will be unstoppable. If not, Twins could make it close. But Baltimore still has enough talent to win it. PREDICTION—A dynasty? 1ST

Pairings in 1st Round NCAA Play

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN Associated Press Sports Writer

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Four of the Associated Press' top-ranked college teams head into the final stages of the NCAA college division basketball tournament Wednesday.

The opening round in spacious Roberts Stadium includes:

2:30 p.m. EST — Long Island (22-6) vs. Winston-Salem State (28-1); 3:30 p.m. — San Diego State (26-4) vs. Illinois State (17-1); 7 p.m. — Southwest Missouri State (21-4) vs. Valparaiso (21-7); 9 p.m. — Cheyney State (27-3) vs. Kentucky Wesleyan (23-3).

Semifinals are Thursday night and the championship game Friday night.

Ranked teams are No. 2 Kentucky Wesleyan, defending champion; No. 4 Cheyney State, No. 5 San Diego State and No. 9 Southwest Missouri.

The Winston-Salem Rams, with the best record in the field, are led by Little All-America senior Earl Monroe, who topped the nation's scorers this season with a 43-point average. He hit 62.4 per cent of his floor shots and 80.7 per cent from the line.

Monroe needs 20 points to break the season scoring record of 1,255 set in 1954 by Bevo Francis of Rio Grande.

Another Little All-America in the tourney is senior Sam Smith of Kentucky Wesleyan, voted the tournament's most valuable player at Evansville last year. He tops the Panthers' attack with a 17.3 average. Balanced scoring punch comes from teammates Dallas Thornton, 15.9; George Tinsley, 15.3 and Roger Cordell, 15.2.

The Long Island Blackbirds are headed by senior Barry Leibowitz with a 15.7 average and a 6-6 sophomore, Luther Green, with 15.6.

The Cheyney Wolves are nursing an 11-game winning streak and are making the Evansville trip for the first time after being knocked out in regional action twice before. They have five players hitting in doubles, led by senior Tom Washington with 22.1. They also boast the tallest players in the tourney, 6-11 Harold Booker, with a 13.6 average.

The Southwest Missouri Bears defeated the nation's two top scoring teams to reach Evansville, Arkansas A.M. & N. and Lincoln, Mo. Dan Bolden, with 19.0, and Jim Gummerbach, 15.2, are the Bears' big guns.

Dick Jones with 22.8 and Vern Curtis 19.6 give the Valparaiso Crusaders their punch.

The San Diego Aztecs will be without their No. 1 scorer, ineligible Bob Lundgren, but there are five others averaging 9.5 or better, headed by 6-7 Al Skalecky with 14.2 and a 13.5 rebound average.

The Illinois State Redbirds are Cinderellas and never had won an NCAA tourney game until taking the Midwest Regional on their home floor. No starter stands more than 6-4. Jerry McGreal with 18.1 and Steve Arends with 15.6 are among four players averaging better than 13 points.

Durocher Going With Youngsters

By JACK STEVENSON Associated Press Sports Writer

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — "Youngsters were our plan for last year and they're not about to change it. We're not going to jump out of the boat now."

Leo Durocher, at 60 and in the second campaign of his three-year contract managing the Chicago Cubs, added, "We've got several kids just an inch away from greatness and they could come right now."

Under Durocher, the Cubs finished dead last in the National League as he stuck with the youth brigade. Surprisingly, although he won't admit it, the fiery skipper has almost a set club for 1967.

But will the inexperienced pitchers come through?

Ron Santo, the captain and All-Star third baseman, thinks they can and will.

"We have more real good hard throwers than I've ever seen in our camp," says Santo who pounded 30 home runs and led the team in batting at .312.

Right-hander Ray Culp, 7-4 at Philadelphia last year, joins the staff in exchange for southpaw Dick Ellsworth. Left-hander Ken Holtzman, just 21, led the club in victories last year (11) when he was only a parttime performer the first two months while attending college.

Ferguson Jenkins, 23, came to the Cubs last April 21. Until August, he worked in relief, then Chicago won six of the nine games he started.

Rich Nye, a 6-foot 4-inch left-hander, could win a spot on the pitching corps even though he has less than a season in pro ball.

Nye was 7-4 in the minors before joining the Cubs. His Chicago record of 0-2 is deceiving since he had a 2.12 earned-run average and the Cubs failed to score in any of the three games he pitched.

Joe Miekro, Jon Robisch and Dean Burt aren't on the major league roster, but one or more might stick.

Bullpen support comes from Bill Hands, Bob Hendley, Cal Koone and perhaps the aging Curt Simmons. There may be a starter in that group.

The New York Mets also made use of the long ball in beating the Boston Red Sox 5-3 at Winter Haven, Fla. Cleon Jones hit a two-run homer and Chuck Hiller slammed a solo shot in the sixth inning.

Reggie Smith hit a two-run homer and rookie second baseman Mike Andrews got five straight hits for the Red Sox.

Los Angeles edged Washington 10-8 at Vero Beach, Fla., when rookies John Wehlf and Jim Campanis broke an 8-8 tie with camp scoring singles in the seventh inning.

Ron Hunt collected two singles and a triple and Bob Bailey drove in three runs with a double and a triple for Los Angeles.

Pittsburgh sent the Kansas City Athletics to their fourth straight setback, 7-1 at Bradenton, Fla., as Matty Alou singled in two runs and Stargell drove in three with a single and double.

Minnesota jumped on Pedro Ramos for five runs in three innings and belted Philadelphia 7-3 at Clearwater, Fla. It also was the Phillies' fourth straight loss. Rich Rollins hit a bases-empty homer for the Twins.

In a Grapefruit League night game, Orlando Martinez squeezed home pinch runner Ed Pacheco in the bottom of the 10th to give Atlanta 1-0 victory

Two Porkers Rate High in the Draft

By ED SCHUYLER JR. Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 445 college seniors went into the "hat" today to be picked in the first combined draft of the National and American football leagues.

But this type isn't done at random. A lot of thought goes into it.

And because it is serious business, the 17 rounds were expected to last at least two days.

Baltimore was to be the first of the 25 teams to pick, with the Minnesota Vikings to follow. Baltimore was picking in place of the new New Orleans Saints and Minnesota had the New York Giants' choice because of trade.

Since Baltimore got the first pick by trading quarterback Gary Cuozzo to New Orleans, the Colts need a backup quarterback for Johnny Unitas. Therefore, the Colts were likely to choose Steve Spurrier of Florida, the Heisman Trophy winner, or Bob Griese of Purdue, the Big Ten's Most Valuable Player.

Minnesota reportedly was considering defensive end Bubba Smith of Michigan State and halfback Harry Jones of Arkansas.

Others expected to be picked early included linebackers George Webster of Michigan State and Jim Lynch of Notre Dame, fullback Ray McDonald of Idaho, defensive tackle Lloyd Phillips of Arkansas, and defensive backs Tom Deier of Miami of Florida and John Charles of Purdue.

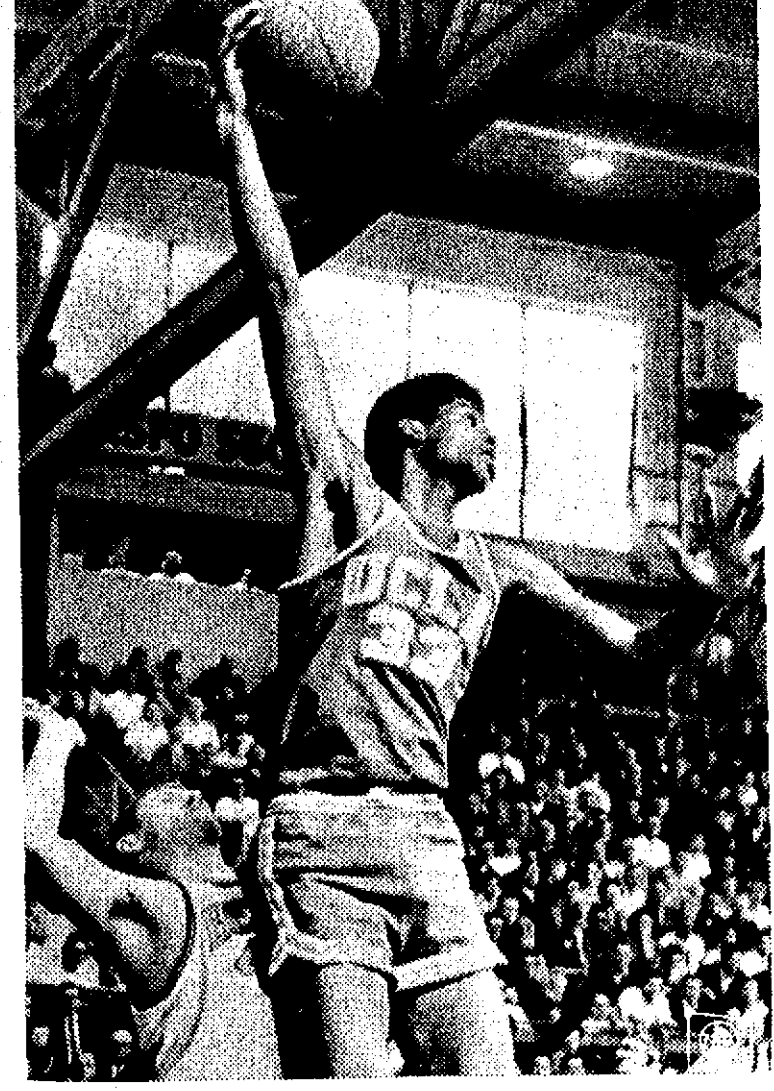

New Orleans, the newest NFL franchise, was to pick the most players, 35, followed by Green Bay, 24, and Baltimore, Buffalo, Houston and Philadelphia, 21 each.

New Orleans originally was to get 37 choices, but the Saints traded away two of them, including the No. 1 pick to Baltimore. World Champion Green Bay got its high number through trades.

Eighty-five of the top college players of 1966 were drafted as futures, or redshirts, in 1966.

Some of these already have signed, such as Notre Dame halfback Nick Eddy, by Detroit; Georgia tackle George Patton, by Atlanta; Alabama end Ray Perkins, by Baltimore; and Southern California flanker Rod Sherman, by Baltimore.

Starting with this year there no longer will be a future draft. Under a new rule agreed on by the two leagues, any player who does not complete his college eligibility may not be drafted until five football seasons have elapsed from the time he first entered a recognized college or university.

HIPS OVER HEAD in hoopland UCLA's towering Lew Alcindor keeps reminding rivals of his physical superiority. Here Lew leaves California's Bruce Steckel, left, a "sawed-off" 6-7 specimen, hanging hip-high as he arches a shot toward the basket. When you stand 7-1 and a fraction, it's easy.

S. Illinois Really Likes Basketball

NEW YORK (AP) — Basketball is a labor of love for Southern Illinois' skillful Salukis, but jumping George Stone and the Thundering Herd prefer to shoot first — and let the good times roll.

"When I'm hot, I just keep pumping. I'm not bashful," an exultant Stone exclaimed Monday night after his 46-point barrage led Marshall's hurrying Herd to a record-breaking 119-98 triumph over Nebraska in the National Invitation Tournament.

"The keys for us have been balance and hard work," said Coach Jack Hartman, whose Salukis preceded Marshall into the NIT semifinals by wearing down Duke 72-63 in the first game of the Madison Square Garden doubleheader.

Marshall and Southern Illinois play the respective winners of tonight's Providence-Marquette and New Mexico-Rutgers pairings in Thursday night's semis.

Stone, an angular 6-foot-7 jump-shooter whose accuracy appears to improve as he moves farther away from the hoop, put together the high-point game thus far in the tourney as Marshall shattered Bradley's 10-year-old NIT record of 116 points.

The junior forward, limited to 15 points in Marshall's 70-68 overtime victory over Villanova last Thursday night, poured in 26 in the first half against the stunned Cornhuskers, hitting on 12 of 19 shots from the floor. He finished with 20-for-38 and a school point record.

Sophomore Dick Carrett, rugged Ralph Johnson and Little All-American Walt Frazier led Southern Illinois past the Blue Devils for its 16th straight victory and 22nd in 24 starts. Southern Illinois, the nation's No. 1 college division team, has won seven of nine games against major foes.

"We've played some of the best teams in the country and we thought we'd have a good chance here," said Frazier, the 6-3 floor general who contributed 17 points, nine rebounds and six assists to the SIU attack. "Some teams have one star. We have five players on the court — no stars. We have desire and momentum. We could go all the way."

Trio Has Lock on Race Individually

NEW YORK (AP) — Rick Barry, Wilt Chamberlain, Adrienne Smith and Guy Rodgers have a lock on the National Basketball Association's individual day races as the 1966-67 season draws to a close.

Barry, San Francisco's second-year flash, takes a commanding 317-point lead over runner-up Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati into the final week of the campaign and appears certain to end Chamberlain's eight-year scoring reign.

The Warriors' forward had 2,607 points, a 36.2 per-game average, through last Sunday's games, according to official NBA statistics released today.

Chamberlain is on the way to an all-time record in field goal percentage and also will lead the rebounders again. The Philadelphia pivotman's .684 floor percentage is well above his .536 mark of a year ago while his 1,854 rebounds tops Boston player-coach Bill Russell by over 200.

Barring a collapse from the foul line, Cincinnati's Smith will take the free throw-shooting title. His .899 mark is superior to the .883 figure compiled by the 1965-66 leader, Larry Siegfried of Boston.

Rodgers, Chicago's 6-foot buckcourt wizard, has the play-making crown — worn by Robertson for the past three seasons — wrapped up. The Bulls' floor general is averaging 11.3 assists per contest, compared to 10.6 for the Big O.

Pro Cage Strike Seems Imminent

By BOB GREEN Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The first strike in history against a major league professional sports organization appeared in the offing today as the Players' Association and the National Basketball Association owners faced each other across a long-range bargaining table.

On the surface, the deadline was noon today for the players to confirm they would participate in the postseason playoffs beginning March 25. If they did not so confirm, said NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy in a public statement, the playoffs would not be held and the $280,000 players' pool would vanish.

Under the surface, there were rumors from well-informed sources that the deadline would be extended past noon. The sources declined to be quoted directly or identified.

At issue is the player pension plan. At present, 10-year players are assured of $200 a month 30 years after they retire. The players ask $600. The owners have offered $500. More importantly, the players want it to be retroactive for players now in the league.

Kennedy cited the costs of printing tickets and leasing auditoriums as the reason for putting off the noon deadline.

He and the players' attorney, Lawrence Fleisher, have not had a face-to-face meeting since last week. They have conferred over the telephone several times, but neither has reported any positive results.

The players contend they will boycott the playoffs if their demands are not met.

Just What Happened to Successor?

By ORLO ROBERTSON Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Eddie Neloj had a problem today and he readily admitted he didn't have the answer. What happened to Successor?

"I'm in just as much of a quandary as you are," said the popular trainer as he talked of the fourth-place finish of the 1966 2-year-old champion and future book favorite for the Kentucky Derby in the six furlong $27,200 Swift Stakes at the opening of Aqueduct Monday.

"He just didn't run and I'll admit I was very disappointed," he added. "He cooled out in fine shape with no signs of any aches or pains."

Neloj, who won a record $2.5 million last year with the runners owned by the Phipps family, managed to smile, however, as he added:

"One swallow doesn't make a spring. Even Buckpasser was beaten."

Successor, making his 3-year-old debut after prepping in Florida following a year in which he won $441,404 and never was out of the money in nine starts, figured to have five rivals at his mercy in the Swift.

Instead he never was in serious contention as Solo Landing, owned and trained by Guy H. Burt, romped home the winner by 5½ lengths for his fifth straight victory extending back to last December.

The Neloj-trained son of Bold Ruler, owned by Mrs. H.C. Phipps' Wheatley Stable, trailed by nearly eight lengths as Sun Gala and Flying tackle followed Solo Landing across the finish line.

The time of 1:09 2-5 was one-fifth second faster than the stakes record but neither Neloj nor jockey Braulio Baeza could find any alibi in that fact.

Still Plenty of Noise on Capitol Hill

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — The changing times have had a quieting effect on Congress. There is still just as much noise from the Capitol. But it's a different kind of noise.

And, just because it is, President Johnson doesn't get the same kind of lashing that was inflicted on President Harry S. Truman. One reason, of course, is that the cast of characters in Congress has changed.

But that's only a minor part of the reason. The attitude in the country is different. President Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal ended in 1938 with the passage of the minimum wage law. From then on Roosevelt and the country put all their resources into getting ready for a war and then fighting it.

On Sept. 2, 1945 Japan formally surrendered and four days later Truman sent a message to Congress. He had the tremendous task of reconverting the country to peace. He never forgot that day, as he made clear in his memoirs.

"It was on that day," he wrote, "and with that message that I first spelled out the details of the program of liberalism and progressivism which was to be the foundation of my administration."

He wanted to carry on with the unfinished New Deal and asked Congress for extension of Social Security, an increase in the minimum wage, national health insurance (now medicare), continued war against slums, new regional developments like the TVA, a full employment bill, and continuance of wartime economic controls.

But at that time Congress in both houses was mostly dominated by a coalition of conservative Republicans, led by Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, and Southern Democrats.

Taft, more than any one man, was Truman's constant critic. There was such unbroken up-roar and opposition to Truman that the Democrats lost control of Congress to the Republicans in 1946.

But by bit Truman got some of his proposals through but Congress took one momentous step. It wouldn't give him a "full employment act" but it gave him an Employment Act in 1946.

In that act, for the first time in American history, Congress said the federal government had a responsibility for the general welfare. All the progressive social legislation which followed in the years since then can be considered a natural consequence of both the nation's needs and the responsibility the government had to assume as a result of that act of 1946.

And right here is the dividing line in the difference between the treatment Truman got from Congress and the treatment Johnson gets.

With Truman the nation was shaking off its historic and extreme conservatism — although not quite, as the right wing in this country today can testify. But social and welfare legislation, starting with Truman after the war, gradually came to be regarded as a national need, not a wild-eyed dream.

Nothing shows that better than the record of the 89th Congress in 1966. It approved Johnson's "Great Society" programs by the bundle, the greatest production performance in American history.

These are just a few of the programs it approved: a health program for the elderly, easier registration for Negroes wanting to vote, aid for education, improved Social Security benefits, rent subsidies for low-income families.

While Johnson's "Great Society" is simply an extension of Roosevelt's New Deal and Truman's Fair Deal, the country and Congress now have come to consider social welfare legislation as natural and necessary.

This is why Johnson doesn't get from Congress the beating Truman had to take on domestic needs.

Bread, Butter Issues Underlying Cause of the Gaullist Setback

Bridges Had Right Tip for Celtics

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Bill Bridges gave the Boston Celtics a tip — one they could have done without.

The Celtics were leading by one point at Memphis, Tenn., with two seconds left Monday night when Bridges tipped in Joe Caldwell's missed shot to give St. Louis a 123-122 victory.

Caldwell then intercepted a Boston pass to clinch the victory, which moved the Hawks two games ahead of Los Angeles in the battle for second place in the Western Division. Each team has three games remaining.

Bridges' basket capped a spurt of seven straight points by the Hawks, who trailed by 16 at halftime and by 13 after three periods. Bridges and Len Wilkens each scored 23 for St. Louis. Bailey Howell got 24 and Wayne Embry 21 for Boston.

Cincinnati moved into a second-place tie with the New York Knicks in the East by beating the Bulls 133-117 at Chicago as Oscar Robertson hit 14 of 18 shots from the field and all 15 of his free throws for 33 points. The Royals and New York also each have three games left.

Adrian Smith contributed 21 points to the Cincinnati attack, while Bob Boozer led Chicago with 29.

At San Francisco, the Warriors whipped the Detroit Pistons 135-109 as Rick Barry, the league's leading scorer, collected 29 points. The Pistons remained tied with Chicago for fourth place in the Western Division, the final playoff position. Each team has four games left.

With Al Attles' brilliant ball handling and tight defense and Nate Thurmond controlling the backboards, the Western Division champions opened a 61-49 halftime lead that they stretched to 90-65.

Symbolism to Baptism

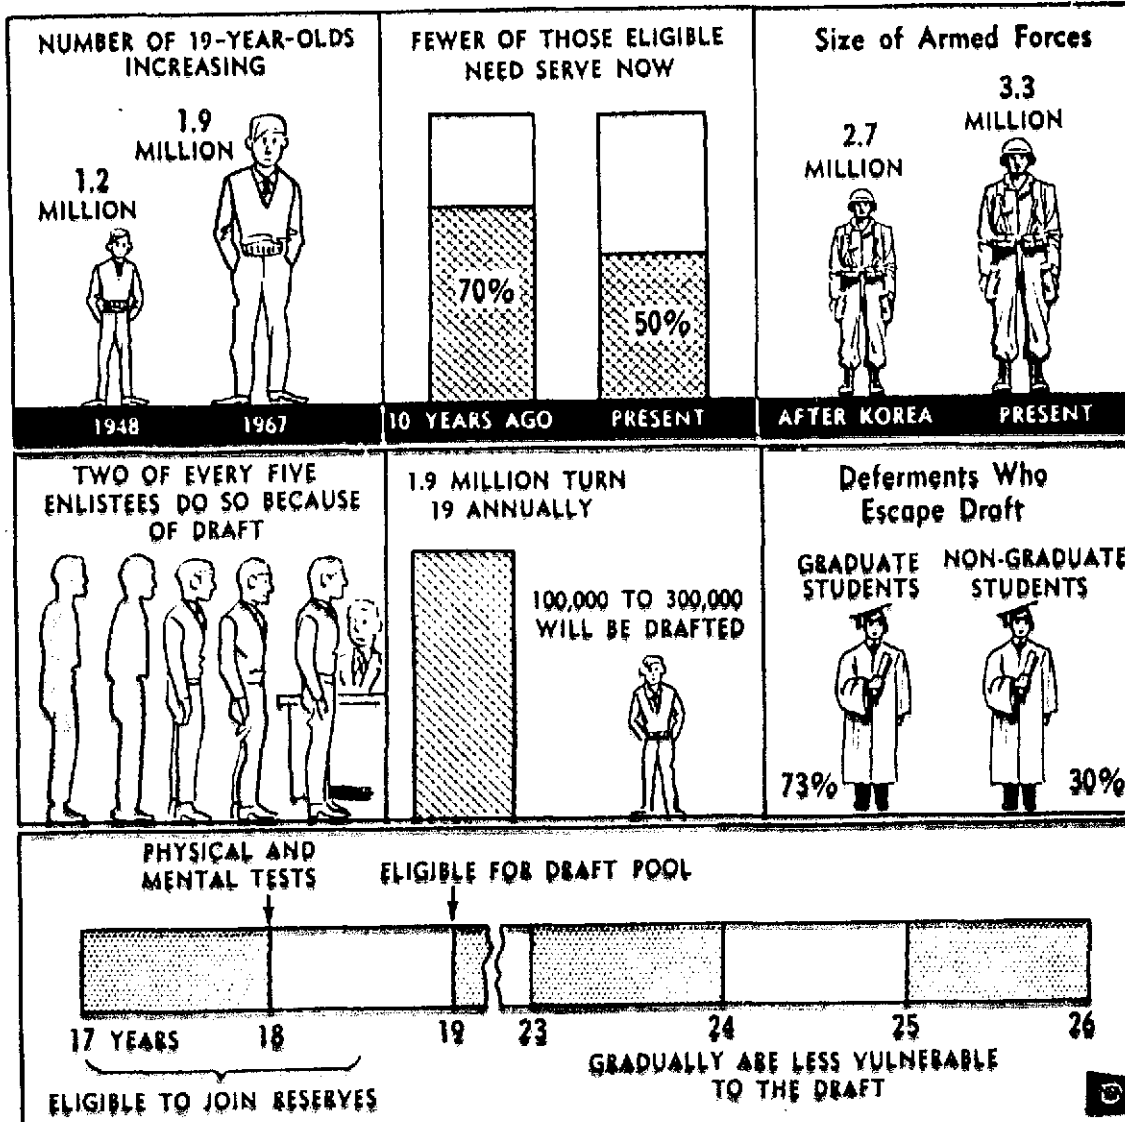

LONDON (AP) — More symbolism will be added to baptism services in the Church of England through the use of candles and the sign of the cross, the Archbishop of Canterbury announced today.

Dr. Michael Ramsey, spiritual leader of the church, told a news conference the use of candles would be "a very edifying and moving symbolism." He noted that in the ancient church, baptism was the "sacrament of light."

TORONTO (AP) — Susan Haltsch, Niagara Falls, N.Y., won the 100-yard butterfly in 1:02.7, the 200-yard freestyle in 2:05.2 and the 400-yard individual medley in 5:06.6 Sunday in the Ontario senior swimming championships.

New Plan for Selective Service

A presidential message to Congress in which new draft proposals were outlined shed new light on some old facts about selective service, including who actually serves and how much manpower is available. It also outlines a new plan of selection, as depicted in the bottom chart above, in which youths would become draft-eligible by lottery at the age of 19. After that, until age 26, they would be gradually less subject to call.

Storms in Ohio Valley Taper Off

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Storms tapered off today after rain, hail and strong winds swept sections of the Ohio Valley, southwestern New York and the Virginias.

More snow fell in areas of the West — up to 8 feet in some mountain areas. The continuing late winter storm has hit areas of California to Montana.

The storms in the East developed along a line separating cold air in the Midwest and far northern states from the unseasonably warm air in the south.

Temperatures Monday hit record highs for March 13 in several cities in the South and northward into the Ohio Valley. Top readings were mostly in the 80s, with the day's high of 99 at Presidio, Tex.

Rain fell in many eastern cities during the night. One inch of hail was reported in the southeastern part of Wyoming County, New York, east of Buffalo. Hail Monday night also pelted the Dayton, Ohio, area, and Charleston, W.Va.

Gusty winds swept the main street of Racine, a small town in southeastern Ohio. There was minor property damage but no injuries were reported. Dense fog shrouded Cleveland, halting operations at both major airports.

Two inches of snow fell at Reno, Nev., Monday night, the total amount on the ground up to 8 inches. But 15 feet of snow has fallen at Norden, just below Donner Pass in California's Sierra Nevada. San Francisco, with rain most of Monday night, had a brief hail storm.

Coldest weather early today was in parts of Montana and North Dakota, with below-zero readings in some cities. More warm weather, with clear skies, was indicated in much of the South.

The overnight low was 18 below zero at Lewistown, Mont.

Demonstrations Marred Visit

MANILA (AP) — Foreign Minister Abba Eban of Israel left for Tokyo today after a two-day official visit to the Philippines which was marred by anti-Israel demonstrations.

Eban canceled a speech at the University of the Philippines this morning because university authorities feared trouble from 100 placard-carrying Moslem students who were waiting for him to appear.

Eban was under tight security protection during his visit after 500 pro-Arab demonstrators gathered at Manila Airport for his arrival Sunday. Several Filipino politicians protested his visit, contending it could harm Philippine relations with Arab countries.

Reciprocity Key to RFK, LBJ Dispute

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — One

diplomatic word — reciprocity — is the key to the dispute between President Johnson and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., over a bombing pause in Vietnam.

Translated into simple English, reciprocity is another way of saying "let them put up or shut up," meaning the North Vietnamese.

Johnson takes this position: The United States stopped the bombing several times in the past, but the North Vietnamese didn't show any signs of wanting to talk peace because of the first condition for peace talks "should be the unconditional termination of American bombing and all other acts of aggression toward North Vietnam as a step toward the conference table. No assurance, and no Vietnam would also have to stop doing something as tit-for-tat toward peace. And neither did North Vietnam's President Ho Chi Minh.

In reply to an appeal by Pope Paul VI for peace, Ho said the United States must "unconditionally and definitively" end the bombing and withdraw from Vietnam.

In Calro a spokesman for the North Vietnamese Embassy said his country would welcome an offer for peace based on a "permanent" halt in American bombing. He didn't say North Vietnam would have to reciprocate in any way.

Nevertheless, Kennedy apparently is willing to forget the "reciprocity" requirement of Johnson. He just wants this country to stop the bombing and tell North Vietnam it is willing to start peace talks. He wants to test what Kosygin and Ho Chi Minh meant.

In all those pauses, the Johnson administration says, there was no response from North Vietnam, no step toward peace talks, even though during one of the pauses the President had peace-envoys running around

Temperatures to Stay at High Level

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A front, which is blocking the advance of much cooler air, is expected to remain stationary with continued warm weather in prospect for Arkansas.

A 20-degree temperature differential is common across the front, which is located in extreme south Missouri.

The forecast by the U. S. Weather Bureau is calling for partly cloudy skies through Wednesday, accompanied by unprecedented high temperatures. The forecast is also calling for the chance of showers in the northern portion of the state, chiefly tonight and early Wednesday.

The low predicted for tonight is in the 60s. The high forecast for Wednesday is in the mid 80s to low 90s.

Overnight low temperatures ranged from 56 at Harrison to 69 at Fort Smith. No rainfall was reported during the 24-hour period ended at 6 a.m.

Residents in both Searcy and Newton counties originally wanted to dam the Buffalo at Gilbert. Former Rt. J. W. Trimble supported the dam. Hammerschmidt defeated Trimble in November.

Negro Leader Classified 4-F

NEW YORK (AP) — Stokely Carmichael, the black power advocate, has been classified 4-F by his local draft board, which virtually exempts him from military service.

The board said Monday night he had failed a medical re-examination and there was no indication another one would be needed.

Carmichael, 25, had told newsmen last November, "I'm not going to go." If he were re-classified and given 1A status. He had previously urged American Negroes not to serve in the armed forces.

Aztec Metropolis

When Cortes, in 1519, reached the Aztec city of Tenochtitlan he found a metropolis equal in its material aspects to many great European cities. The city contained aqueducts, palaces, pyramids, temples and 20 schools for the common people as well as others for the nobility.

THE WELL CHILD

Young Diabetic Must Know His Own Danger Signals

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D. Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

isn't, the harm can be easily remedied.

Diabetic coma is preceded by acidosis which may be heralded by the frequent passage of large amounts of urine and an inordinate thirst. These symptoms, too, may be ignored by a child. In time, however, he will come to recognize the warning signs of these two complications and report them to his parents or, if he is old enough, take steps to remedy them.

Juvenile diabetes is notorious for its instability. Such things as vigorous play in the sunshine may reduce your child's insulin requirement and keeping him in on a rainy day may increase it. Any change in his meal time or his school gym period will affect his need for insulin and the number of calories in his meals will need to be adjusted to compensate for the change.

Some parents still make the mistake of withholding sweets from a diabetic child. He needs his sweets but in carefully calculated amounts geared to his insulin intake, his output of energy and his rate of growth. Another misconception is that the diabetic child is more susceptible to infection than a normal child. This is a hazard of the middle-aged diabetic, not the juvenile diabetic.

Finally the question arises whether you should send your child to a diabetic camp. If he has not yet made a good social and emotional adjustment to his disease the answer is yet, but if he has made such an adjustment, let him go to a regular camp. After all, the world he is going to live in is not slanted to the diabetic and he will want to learn to live as nearly a normal life as possible.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The heaviest bell in the world is the Tsar Kolokol (King of Bells) at the Kremlin in Moscow, Russia. Cast in 1733, the huge bell weighs 216 tons, stands 19 feet tall, measures 22 feet 8 inches in diameter and is 24 inches at its greatest thickness, says The World Almanac. Soon after it was cast, fire destroyed its supports and the fall broke a 12-ton piece from its side. The bell has never been rung.

CAPTAIN EASY

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Here is a hand which Evelyn defended a few years ago. South ducked the first heart and won the continuation. There were any number of ways to play the hand. He could bang the king and ace of diamonds and if that failed to drop the queen he could go after the club suit. Or he could play his king of diamonds and then finesse dummy's jack.

PRISCILLA'S POP

South led the ten of diamonds and let it ride! If Evelyn had taken her queen, South would have made at least four no-trump but Evelyn simply dropped her deuce. Her reasoning was that if South held king-ten-small he would have played the king first. If he held ten-small her play of the queen would allow him to bring home the rest of the diamond suit, and finally, South just might hold the exact hand he did hold.

TOM TIEDE IN VIETNAM

By TOM TIEDE

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

SAIGON, Vietnam—(NEA) —There is an infantry major in this war who greets most incoming reporters with a small yawn, a squint eye and a 3 x 3-inch printed card, which impolitely asks, "Which side are you on, Buster?"

It is no gag; the major really wants to know. For he asserts that at least some of the correspondents here "seem to be working for the wrong army."

Although this man is a public information officer, assigned to help professional newsmen get the war news to the public, his attitude betrays a basic distrust of the reporter, which seems to be characteristic of many military officers. They assume that the reporter should be on a side or "working for" an army.

Since the reporters are civilians, they feel they are in Vietnam to describe what is said and done and what occurs without prejudice so long as it does not endanger military security. Most of the 500 press and broadcasting people in Vietnam do their job according to these standards and are free from service criticism. In the military view, these are tagged "friendly."

Some others are given only occasional scrutiny. They are designated as "unfriendly," which describes a definite lack of military and political compassion, but not necessarily biased or unobjective battlefield coverage.

The remainder are, in the infantry major's view, "the dirty birds."

These few are termed "hostile." And in the conviction of the military which condemns them, they print or broadcast prejudiced news, sometimes unfounded news, which gives a distorted picture of the Allied effort and, worse, often materially aids the enemy.

The hostile group has been estimated at about "platoon-sized"—30 to 40 men and women who raise all the more hackles because some of them represent influential and distinguished news media in America as well as other free world centers.

Public statements about these dissenters are guarded and broadly generalized. But private opinions are less cautious. Many outspoken soldiers, for example, believe such reporters are "unwittingly in cahoots" with communism.

"The idiots," they say, "may even be helping prolong this war."

They mean indirectly, certainly. The notion—neither new nor isolated among servicemen here—is that passionate news reports which rap U.S. war activity can be of ample emotional and propaganda value to the opposition forces.

"Consider this," they explain. "The enemy doubtless reads our newspapers just as we read theirs. So when they find column after column which reports actual or alleged divisions in U.S. determination, it must buoy their spirits."

"Obviously they have prepared themselves for a long war on the theory we haven't the patience to stick it out. Some reporters serve only to propagate this belief. Their articles can only be of great comfort to the other side."

Thus, the argument goes.

the enemy continues to fight.

Why? Why not? Why should they quit now? From all indications the enemy feels much of the American press sides with them and will eventually force a U.S. policy change that will end with wholesale withdrawal from Southeast Asia.

This theory, of course, observes the matter from only one side—the military's. And since that side is of the persuasion that all war news from Vietnam should be favorable to them, the view lacks realism.

Yet the point is honest and because of it more than a few reporters grapple with themselves over the implications of some stories they write.

At times, the grapple concerns basic conflicts between the national good and the public's right to know. And some several thousand servicemen here who are concerned only with the former, feel that too many newsmen are concerned only with the latter.

Admittedly, these servicemen are not as interested in freedom of the press at the present time as they are in winning the war. On the other hand, most of them are not proposing press censorship so much as press responsibility.

Their principal gripe is that some reporters seem never to write the U.S. side of the situation, that they arrive in a country only to look for mud to sling, that they aren't interested in reporting facts but rather in grinding personal axes.

"I suppose they mean well," says the infantry major. "They always talk about helping the cause of peace and all that. But, quite frankly, I'm skeptical."

He is indeed. And blunt. After the major shocks visiting reporters with his first 3 x 3-inch card, he follows it up quickly with a second printed message.

It, too, carries a terse comment.

"If you really want to help," it reads, "go away."

Soviet Spy Ship Always Near Guam

EDITOR'S NOTE — Malcolm G. Barr formerly covered Pacific Islands for The Associated Press and himself did some of the bartering described in this story of a Soviet spy ship off Guam.

By MALCOLM G. BARR WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Johnson visits Guam next week, his arrival will be routinely reported by a Soviet spy ship which keeps the tiny island under constant surveillance.

Knowledge of the President's arrival for a Vietnam war conference won't be much of a coup for the Communists — his trip has been announced and security on Guam should be easier to maintain than anywhere else he has been in the Pacific.

It's novel, though, that a top level war conference involving the President and his top advisers will take place just a few miles from where a group of known Soviet spies operates with the latest electronic equipment.

U.S. naval authorities also try not to let the spy ship bother them.

In fact, the Navy — and the civilian population — treat the vessel as something of a tourist attraction. The Navy takes VIP visitors out in a launch to see the boat, and they normally get a friendly wave from any Soviet who happens on deck.

The Soviet crewmen, of course are not permitted ashore. When Soviet vodka or cigarettes begin popping up around sleepy Agaña, the capital of Guam, investigations are made.

Civilians have been known to get close enough to exchange American cigarettes for vodka and other commodities, though naval intelligence officially frowns on such activity.

Rear Adm. Horace Bird, who commands the Navy in the Marianas, once told a reporter, how, for swordfish and man-eating sharks.

"The Uniques," one of the top rock and roll bands in the nation, will play for a dance at the Hope Youth Center on April 1st.

The group performed at the Youth Center last August and drew a tremendous crowd with teenagers coming from as far as Little Rock.

The "Uniques" have had several hit records and a hit album, have performed at the Paramount theater in New York City, in Hollywood with the "Beach Boys" and have appeared on nationwide television on the American Bandstand. They currently have a new record out that is getting excellent radio play over the South.

The group is returning to the Hope Center for reasonable fee, since they played here often before hitting the big time.

The "Uniques" will be preceded at the Center by the "Egyptians," Arkansas' hottest teen-age combo, who will play for the annual Easter holiday dance on March 25th.

So for two weeks going, the local teen-agers will hear the tops in rock and roll music.

much. "It gives the intelligence people something to do!" he chuckled.

A Soviet vessel has bobbed at anchor just beyond Guam's three-mile limit since the United States introduced Polaris-armed submarines into the Pacific slightly more than two years ago.

A "fishing boat," bristling with antennae, took up its lonely post the day before the first Polaris sub surfaced outside Apra harbor in December 1964. Guam is the forward base for the nuclear missile-armed subs.

Later, Andersen Air Force Base, at the northerly end of the 30-mile-long, jungle covered island, became the launch pad for huge swept-wing B52 bombers which attack Vietnam targets 2,400 miles away.

Maj. Gen. William Crum, of the Strategic Air Command on Guam, knows the Soviets signal back word of the huge eight-engine bombers taking off.

But in an interview some time ago he said he wasn't much concerned about it because "by the time they get the information to where it matters our planes are on the way home."

Germans, Poles Sign Treaty

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS WARSAW, Poland (AP) — East German Communist party chairman Walter Ulbricht and other government leaders arrived today to sign a friendship treaty with Poland in an effort to shore up East German prestige despite the West German political offensive in Eastern Europe.

Ulbricht and Polish leaders are scheduled to sign the treaty Wednesday. It provides mutual military assistance against any attempt by West Germany to change by force German or Polish borders which Bonn does not recognize. Ulbricht is expected to sign a similar treaty with Czechoslovakia in Prague Thursday.

Bonn recently established diplomatic ties with Romania and is expected to do the same with Bulgaria and Hungary.

Flying Missiles Under Study

LONDON (AP) — Defense Ministry investigations are studying a batch of "restricted" documents about guided missiles found flying about the streets of Buckburn, Scotland. It was the fourth such find in Britain in recent months.

A ministry spokesman said: "We don't want to have classified material knocking about the streets."

Sunday two small boys found hundreds of classified defense documents blowing around the streets of London. They apparently fell off a dump truck.

Senator May Talk With Viet Cong

By BOB GASSAWAY

SAIGON (AP) — Sen. Edward W. Brooke, who has suggested a re-examination of U.S. policy of bombing North Vietnam, flew to Cambodia today and said he may talk with Viet Cong and North Vietnamese representatives there.

The Massachusetts Republican told newsmen as he left for Phnom Penh that if he meets the Communist representatives, it will be primarily to "study attitudes."

He also hopes to meet with the Cambodian chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, he said, adding: "There is a possibility that if there are representatives of the NFL (the National Liberation Front) and of the North there, I might talk with them." The NFL is the political arm of the Viet Cong.

Brooke, on a 17-day Asian fact-finding tour, again expressed a wish to visit North Vietnam but said the U.S. State Department has been "very discouraging and understandably so" about such a trip.

He said he had not asked Hanoi for an invitation and had received none. He said he would not go even if invited, however, if the trip would embarrass the U.S. government.

"I have heard nothing on this trip that would help get an invitation," he said. If he were to visit the North Vietnamese capital he emphasized, it would be only to "evaluate how Hanoi is weathering this war."

The first Negro to be elected to the U.S. Senate in this century, Brooke said last month he hoped to visit both North and South Vietnam and to interview North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh.

In an address at the College of the Virgin Islands he said a cessation of bombing of North Vietnam "would show a genuine and sincere effort on our part (to negotiate peace) and would shift the burden to the Viet Cong."

Brooke said today that he is not representing the executive branch of the U.S. government on his tour and is carrying no peace feelers.

Meredith's Pullout Stills Criticism

By AUSTIN SCOTT

NEW YORK (AP) — James H. Meredith's sudden decision to pull out of the congressional race against Adam Clayton Powell has stilled the angry criticism generated in Harlem by his candidacy.

Former critics freely praised the young maverick civil rights activist who decided not to run as a Republican less than 24 hours after saying the race was as important to him as a presidential nomination.

But Meredith's generally cryptic statements have made the decision a subject for extensive speculation, and there is a growing feeling in Harlem that he may have been the victim of bad advice.

Almost from his announcement of candidacy last Tuesday, a revolt was evident among Harlem Republicans, none of whom had a good word for his candidacy.

Cora Walker, a GOP leader in Harlem, said party committeemen in Powell's 18th Congressional District would not have endorsed Meredith, who calls himself an Independent Democrat, partly because he was chosen by white party leaders without the advice of Negroes in Harlem.

Meredith, 33, said first at an impromptu news conference Monday that he had changed his mind because the Republicans had not delivered on promises of money to help finance his campaign and other assistance. "I knew the moment the resentment came from the community, his money would be cut off," said Mrs. Walker. "In politics, nobody supports a loser."

Later, at a second, formal news conference, Meredith appeared vague on why he had pulled out. He denied it was because of pressures brought by Floyd McKissick, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, and Charles Evers, Mississippi state director of the NAACP, at a three-hour meeting Sunday night shortly before he announced his withdrawal. They told Meredith he would be dead politically if he insisted on opposing Powell.

Evers described the meeting as dramatic and fearful. He said he and Meredith clasped hands and wept when they parted sometimes after 1 a.m. Meredith made his announcement shortly after 1 a.m.

touch off an economic downturn or even a recession.

Fowler told the House Banking Committee Monday the administration reserves the right to modify its proposal but "we haven't changed our mind as of now."

Fowler added that suspending the investment credit was a selective move intended to dampen a highly specialized boom with inflationary possibilities— heavy ordering of equipment that was creating backlogs of unfilled demand.

This particular situation has been corrected, Fowler contended, so the administration is asking for the suspension to be ended ahead of schedule.

But he insisted the request does not mean it has come to doubt its economists' forecasts of a general economic pickup later this year.

Trial Judges grew out of the work of the Joint Committee for the Effective Administration of Justice which was headed by the Honorable Tom C. Clark, Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

Justice Clark, who has served as chairman of the governing board of the college since its inception in 1964, has personally attended each session of the college.

"At the end of this summer's sessions there will be a total of 700 graduates which is 20 per cent of the nation's state trial judges," Justice Clark said. "This is numerical evidence of the contribution which the college has made and will make to the improvement of the administration of justice in our nation. These dedicated judges, through a national exchange of ideas, return to their communities better prepared to carry out the high traditions of the judiciary."

Judge Arnold, 43, took office as circuit judge of the Eighth Judicial District on January 1 of this year. The Eighth District comprises Clark, Hempstead, Miller and Nevada counties.

He was graduated with honors from the University of Texas as where he also obtained his law degree. He was admitted to practice in 1950.

He is a member of the county, state and national bar associations, the Arkansas Supreme Court's Committee on Model Jury Instructions, and is on the board of directors of the Arkansas Law Review and Bar Association Journal. Judge Arnold is a past president of the Miller-Bowie Cancer Society and the Texarkana Pilots Association, Inc.

Students in Indonesia Acting Up

By T. JEFF WILLIAMS

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Student leaders boycotted a rally supporting acting President Suharto today, but the government brought out more than 50,000 persons to hear Jakarta's military commander, Maj. Gen. Amir Machmud, appeal for stability.

The brightly colored jackets of the politically powerful student groups were conspicuous by their absence. Unofficial student sources said the leaders were unhappy with Suharto's broadcast Monday night in which he said President Sukarno "would be treated as the president without any more power in politics."

Most of the people at today's rally were workers and civil defense personnel. Chiefs of nearby villages said they were told to round up as many people as possible and bring them to the city. Several said they did not know what the reason was until they arrived.

The student groups have agitated for months for removal of Sukarno's presidential title and for him to be put on trial for alleged complicity in the attempted Communist coup of Oct. 1, 1965.

Radio Jakarta announced today that a special Indonesian military court sentenced former Brig. Gen. Supardjo to death Monday night for his part in the coup attempt. Testimony during his trial closely linked Sukarno with Supardjo.

Congress wound up a five-day special session Sunday during which it divested Sukarno of his presidential powers, prohibited him from all political activity and named Gen. Suharto, the army strongman, acting president.

Sukarno's actual status remains fuzzy. The students and many top leaders in Congress believe Sukarno was totally dismissed, but military men close to Suharto adhere to the general's position that Sukarno remains president, although in name only.

Sukarno has been the only president Indonesians have known since he proclaimed independence from the Dutch in 1945, and Suharto and his associates fear his complete removal from office will touch off a civil war. Central and East Java, supposedly the areas of Sukarno's greatest following, so far have been reported calm despite the congressional action.

Sukarno spent the weekend at his palace in Bogor, 40 miles east of Jakarta. He was expected to return to the capital today.

Suggests Johnny Run for Office

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Carson for senator against Robert F. Kennedy in 1970?

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller tossed off the jocular suggestion Monday night against a background of audience applause and laughter as a guest during taping of Carson's Tonight Show on NBC television.

"You've got very good ratings," Rockefeller told the television entertainer. "Now, you'd have to let your hair grow."

Kennedy, the junior senator from New York, wears an on-the-forehead hairdo.

Boston Celtics, and Everett Dean, former Stanford coach, were inducted into the Basketball Hall of Fame Sunday night.

With the Girl Scout organization now 55 years old, baking bread has given way to the times—the girls are more likely to be turning out a pizza.

IT'S A COSTLY WAR and nobody wants to prolong the conflict. But many soldiers believe some reporters are "unwittingly in cahoots" with communism.

Paper Ruled Liable in Carrier Case

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Supreme Court Monday struck a blow at "independent contractors" under which newsboys deliver newspapers.

The court reversed a decision of Union Circuit Court that upheld such a contract between the Arkansas Democrat and a carrier, Tommy Cage, then 13. Cage was injured while working his newspaper route in El Dorado on a motor scooter. With the approval of his parents, he had a written agreement with the Democrat in which he was regarded as an independent merchant.

Marvin Clark, guardian for Tommy, brought suit against the Democrat for $195,000, contending Cage was injured while being employed by the newspaper, rather than as an independent merchant.

The Supreme Court ordered Union Circuit Court to take the case and ascertain the amount of damages that Cage should receive.

The Democrat contended that Act 96 of 1963 authorized the newspaper to contract with a minor, but the court said this act was superseded by Initiative Act 1 of 1914, which states that no child under 14 shall be employed or permitted to work except for his parents or in occupations owned or controlled by the parents.

In another case, the court gave its ruling on the constitutionality of an extension of the 1967 legislature and payment of per diem to legislators. The court had issued an order saying the extension was legal.

The court said the constitution gave the legislature the power to extend itself by a two-thirds vote of members of both houses.

The court said amendment 48, which provides $20 a day per diem expenses during a regular session, made no distinction between the regular session and any additional days of the session.

The court also affirmed a Conway Circuit Court ruling against a retrial for Billy Cross, who was convicted of first-degree murder March 5, 1964, and sentenced to life in prison.

Powell Will Return to N.Y. Sunday

BULLETIN

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York State Appellate Court by a four to one vote, today refused to vacate a lower court order permitting the arrest of former Rep. Adam Clayton Powell if he comes here on Sunday, as he has promised.

BIMINI, Bahamas (AP) — Adam Clayton Powell, who announced plans to return to New York next Sunday, says if he is arrested the "people in Harlem" will not let him remain in jail.

He told a news conference Monday he would "walk the streets of Harlem" and deliver a Palm Sunday sermon at his Abyssinian Baptist church despite the threat of arrest on a contempt-of-court warrant. The warrant makes him liable to arrest any time he re-enters the state of New York.

A lawyer in the New York sheriff's office said, "We do not know now whether we would arrest Mr. Powell if he came into town Sunday, because arrests in civil cases are not usually made on Sundays."

Powell joined with Negro leaders in Harlem and across the country in hailing James H. Meredith's withdrawal as the Republican leaders' choice to oppose Powell in a special congressional election April 11. "I didn't think a civil rights leader would allow himself to become a white man's puppet," Powell replied when asked why he thought Meredith had dropped out of the race.

Meredith told a news conference in New York that he pulled out because the Republicans had not delivered on promises of money to help finance his campaign.

Meredith would not say whether he would support Powell. He said only that the election was "bigger than Adam Clayton Powell."

America has a secret ballot, he said, and "I'll decide when I'm ready."

Meredith said he planned to stay in Republican politics, but he did not specify in what role.

He said only: "I intend to stay in the political arena of the city, the state and the nation, further to advance the principles in which I believe. I am certain that my efforts combined with those of the Republican party will enhance the dignity of the human race."

The order authorizing the arrest of Powell anytime he came into New York State was signed Nov. 28, 1966, by State Supreme Court Justice Arthur Markewich. So far as is known, Powell hasn't been in New York since.

His troubles with Mrs. James led in part to his exclusion from Congress, which he is fighting in the courts.

Senate Ethics Group Gets Data on Dodd

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are facts on which Sen. Thomas J. Dodd and the Senate ethics committee investigating his finances have agreed:

Total raised — $456,709 in testimonial dinners and other fund-raising activities in Dodd's behalf between 1961 and 1965.

Dodd's bank accounts — About $150,000 eventually was transferred to bank accounts held by Dodd and his wife in Washington and New York.

Campaign bank accounts — Some funds in special accounts containing receipts of fund-raising activities were used to pay for such items as liquor bills, football tickets, hotel and motel charges, and parking tickets.

Some Tax Restoration Is Likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House administration asks a store some tax breaks for business — but now is expected to wait another two months before submitting its formal request for an income tax increase.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler carries the business tax message to the House Ways and Means Committee, where he also faces the certainty of questions about the proposed 6 per cent surtax on income levies.

Johnson, Fowler and others have insisted they still intend to ask for income taxes to be increased at midyear.

The administration meanwhile wants immediate restoration of the investment tax credit, by which businesses can recover 7 per cent of their spending on equipment, and of favorable depreciation rules for profit-making buildings.

Congress reluctantly suspended the investment credit and depreciation rules last year. From both parties have come indications of willingness to restore them.

The Ways and Means Committee hopes to confine its hearings to today. The House leader, ship already has tentatively scheduled the bill for floor action Thursday.

Administration sources say the two-month delay on submitting the surtax request stems mainly from hints dropped by the Ways and Means Committee that it can't possibly hold hearings on the surtax until June.

Some members of Congress have been cool to the plan in a heavily guarded room in New Orleans.

But the longer wait will also permit the administration to make any last-minute changes in the proposal to compensate for any changing economic conditions.

Administration sources insist, however, that the economy is plodding along generally on the track they charted in the January economic report to Congress.

The tax plan has been outlined to Congress by the administration but no specific legislation has yet been sent to Capitol Hill.

Asked if the administration were holding off submission of a formal bill to permit any last-minute changes in the original plan, one top government source replied: "That's part of it."

Another source said it's likely to be May or even early June before a formal tax bill is submitted to Congress.

Despite current sluggishness in the economy, the administration is still convinced the surtax will be needed later this year to stifle inflationary pressures and help raise money for the Vietnam war.

But there is some fear in Congress that the surtax might

Trawler Is Shot Up by U.S. Ships

By GEORGE MCARTHUR SAIGON (AP) — American warships fought a running duel off the South Vietnamese coast today with a large arms-smuggling Communist trawler which ran onto the shore and blew itself up when flight became hopeless.

The 100-foot, steel-hulled trawler shot up a 50-foot U.S. Navy patrol boat during the sea battle. The Red crew set off detonating charges after they beached the trawler, but much contraband, including small arms and uniforms, was recovered. Salvage crews were searching for more.

The fight took place about 100 miles south of the 17th Parallel which divides North and South Vietnam. Two such trawlers were intercepted last year by U.S. naval ships and gave up a large amount of arms and supplies. Naval officers felt today's interception may prove to be as important.

Half a dozen heavy Communist mortar attacks in the central highlands marked the ground war Monday and today. One U.S. soldier was reported killed and 75 were reported wounded.

Heavy weather again moved in over much of North Vietnam, limiting U.S. warplanes to 92 missions Monday. Most were against supply lines and rail targets in the southern coastal area.

The Communist trawler was spotted by a Navy Neptune patrol plane 25 miles off the coast of Quang Ngai Province, about 325 miles northeast of Saigon.

The destroyer Brister, the Coast Guard cutter Point Ellis and the faster, 50-foot Swift patrol boat No. 73 were dispatched to intercept the trawler.

When the Brister let go a long-range warning shot across the trawler's bow, the Communist vessel opened up on the approaching Swift boat with machine-gun fire. The Communist bullets ripped into the Swift's hull and inflicted considerable damage but caused no casualties, a U.S. spokesman said.

Bracketed by fire from the Brister and the Ellis, the trawler ran on the beach an hour after being sighted.
